

1: An East Timorese woman in traditional dress (photo Irena Cristalis)

2

3

4

- 2: Olandina Caeiro (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 3: Maria Domingas Fernandes (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 4: Teresa Carvalho (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 5: Ivete de Oliveira (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 6: Milena Pires (centre, answering media questions following the loss of the vote on quotas for women candidates in the Constituent Assembly elections, February 2001) (photo Catherine Scott)

7: Laura Abrantes and Maria Dias (photo Catherine Scott)

8: Maria Lourdes Martins Cruz (Mana Lou) (photo Irena Cristalis)

9: Mana Bisoi (photo Irena Cristalis)

10: Mana Bisoi pictured with her uncle, Falintil resistance army commander L-Foho Rai Boot (photo Irena Cristalis)

11: Falintil women sewing insignias onto uniforms at the guerrilla training camp in Waimori, 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)

12

13

14

15

- 12: A Falintil family (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 13: A woman in the Falintil resistance army with her child (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 14: Falintil women working as nurses, sitting in front of a makeshift clinic at the guerrilla training camp in Waimori, 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 15: Young women members of Renetil singing the Falintil song at the 24th anniversary celebrations of Falintil at the guerrilla training camp in Waimori, 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 16: East Timorese student activists in Semarang, Java, Indonesia, demonstrating in 1998 in support of independence for East Timor (photo Irena Cristalis)

16

17

18

19

20

- 17: Women at a remembrance ceremony in 1998 for victims of the 1991 Santa Cruz massacre (when Indonesian troops opened fire on a peaceful demonstration in Dili, killing more than 270 East Timorese) (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 18: Widows at a mass in commemoration of the victims of a massacre by a pro-Indonesian militia group at the Catholic church in Liquiça in April 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 19: Women collecting tin sheets to use to make shelters following the destruction by the Indonesian military and militias after the referendum in August 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 20: A woman holds a picture of Fr Hilario Madeira during a memorial service held in Dili in 1999. Fr Hilario was one of three priests killed in a massacre at Suai church in September 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 21: Two generations join together to oppose violence against women at a demonstration organised by Fokupers and other organisations in Dili, November 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)

21

22

23

24

25

- 22: Women at the demonstration against violence, Dili, November 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 23: Men prepare to join a march against violence against women on International Women's Day in March 2001 (photo Catherine Scott)
- 24: Women at a Fretilin rally in 2001 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 25: A debate between women candidates in the run-up to the Constituent Assembly elections in 2001 (photo Irena Cristalis)
- 26: Olandina Caeiro addressing a rally prior to the Constituent Assembly elections, flanked by (left) Maria Domingas Fernandes and (right) Teresa Carvalho (photo Irena Cristalis)

26

27

28

29

30

27: Appolonia da Costa, one of two independent women candidates in the district of Oecusse (photo Irena Cristalis)

28: A young supporter of Olandina Caeiro (photo Irena Cristalis)

29: A young supporter of Maria Domingas Fernandes (photo Irena Cristalis)

30: Women in Lequidoe queuing to vote in the Constituent Assembly elections (photo Irena Cristalis)

31: Women in Lequidoe queuing to vote in the Constituent Assembly elections (photo Irena Cristalis)

31

32

33

34

32: Fretilin supporters the night of independence, 20 May 2002 (photo Irena Cristalis)

33: A woman holding a statue of Jesus (photo Irena Cristalis)

34: The procession for Our Lady of Fatima in Dili, 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)

35: Children in traditional costume welcoming Bishop Basilio do Nascimento to a remote mountain village (photo Irena Cristalis)

36: A primary school in Aileu, 1999 (photo Irena Cristalis)

37: A woman weaving at a project in Dili run by the Organização da Mulher Timorense (photo Irena Cristalis)

38: A woman in Ermera district picking coffee beans (photo Irena Cristalis)

